

Online Food Safety Training Resources Available Through The Virginia Department of Health Website

The Food Safety Training Resources listed below are what can be found on the VDH website. Click on the links to find out more information about a particular training. Some of the courses can be taken in other languages such as Spanish or Chinese.

(Please be aware that courses are from outside vendors and may require a fee)

Certified Food Managers Courses

By July 1, 2018 at least 1 employee with supervisory & management responsibility & the authority to direct & control food preparation & service must be a Certified Food Manager. Some exceptions apply for low risk facilities so contact your Environmental Health Specialist if you are not sure you need to meet this requirement. Check out certification programs recognized by the Conference of Food Protection \(CFP\) and the American Standards Institute \(ANSI\) or contact your local health district for courses that are recognized locally. (Take only 1 class listed. The exam will not be offered on line & you must go to an approved/proctored site, make sure the exam is offered in your area before registering for the class.)

Food Handlers Courses

While this is not a requirement in most districts, management and employees that have a food handlers certificate have a food safety understanding that exceeds the typical knowledge basis for staff and show extra commitment to food safety for their patrons. Food Handlers Courses take less time and are often less expensive than Certified Food Managers Courses plus they are offered online and through various local health departments in Virginia. (Take only 1 class listed)
